Government urges employers to pay workers impacted by COVID-19

The Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare (MoLSW) is planning to support workers who have lost their jobs due to the COVID-19 pandemic. The Department of Labour Administration reaffirmed through the media that the rights and benefits of workers would be protected.

MoLSW met with business representatives and company managers in Special Economic Zones to discuss a joint response to the impact of COVID-19 on workers and employment. Under the current Law on Social Security (which entered into force on 13 August 2018), employers are obliged to pay wages to employees and to maintain social welfare benefits for those who have been stood down during the pandemic. Workers can seek support from Labour and Social Welfare departments and offices in respective provinces and districts, as well as the Lao Federation of Trade Unions, if their employer refuses to pay wages in these circumstances.
